Clive's Comments

It is now late September and we would normally be getting over the Grand Final weekend (in Melbourne) and talking about spring racing and summer holidays. Our biggest concern is normally the weekend weather over the next three months. Fine weekends mean a successful spring that sets up our industry for a good summer/autumn. For most of Australia the world is much as normal but not Melbourne.

Our full lockdown has basically been extended until late October. Many retailers have developed a 'click and collect' system that is keeping them afloat. This is the case for the many of the retail nurseries but not all and it means twice as much work for the same income.

Personally I am angry at the way it has been managed by our government. Even though our business is doing well due to the Covid lockdowns have created a whole new generation of gardeners many of whom love the edible options. We live on the outskirts of Melbourne so life is not too bad although we do have credits with two airlines and a holiday venue which we may never use. We miss going to restaurants and the hair is a bit long but overall we are okay. My heart bleeds for all the small businesses who have lost everything with no sign of a recovery. It also goes out to all the people living in inner city apartments who have been basically locked up since March.

The Stage Four was initially for six weeks, then it was extended for another two and for retail and most businesses it has been extended for another three. Some won't even be able to open until the end of November. The Victorian daily numbers ae not much different from NSW and are certainly well below what was happening in June when most states relaxed. We have a group of politicians and senior public servants in Victoria that are something out of 'Yes Minister'. If anyone has listened to the daily reports from the...

Clive's Comments continued... Inquiry they would be laughing as one leader after another says 'I can't remember'. It is frustrating knowing that our lives are controlled by a group of three or four people who can basically do or say what they want. They can make any rules they like and there is nothing we can do about it. They have made the law such that they can make any regulations to do with any part of our lives and Parliament can't stop them. They are proposing a set of laws that would allow them to 'deputise' any person to arrest any other person based on a suspicion they might do something wrong. The call it an Omnibus law and is a serious overstepping of what most Australians would see as reasonable. In a normal world we have elections and one party or another wins government for three or four years. Sometimes it is the party we like and sometimes not and our lives continue on. There will be a shift in the social fabric and economic system that will change our behaviour but over all Australians get on with their daily lives. Those with an interest in politics follow the changes closely but most people don't really care. The political system is such that those who get to the top are good at 'politics' and know how to win votes and support. Decades ago they also had some experience in the real world as workers or business owners but now they grow up in an insular world where all they know is politics. What is so scary is that in Melbourne we can see how the leader has 100% control of our entire lives and when an 'emergency' strikes we rely on them. In the real world of business, in education, armed forces people move up the line by being good at their jobs. This means they have an understanding of what they are doing and how to do it well. Our political leadership does not have a skill set for managing a crisis. Their skill set is keeping their support when it is needed. During a crisis, if they are good, they will build a ring of people around them who are good at managing a crisis but they don't have to. Next time we vote will we think; 'Can this person manage us in a crisis?' - I doubt it will enter our minds. The Covid world has certainly driven our industry crazy with demand for plants. Edibles are really popular and indoor are over the top. The demand for indoor plants is a world wide craze. We do commercial quarantine for plant collectors and a year ago a rare Monstera out of Thailand was $50 for a single leaved, rooted cutting. Now it is $200 - if you can get one. Outside Melbourne the plant sales are massive and many of the tree/shrub growers are running out of stock. This is good as it puts cash in the industry and means we have fresh, vigorous stock. It gives nurseries room for capital improvement and employing new staff. We are on a high and have an opportunity to cement us back into the mind of the community. In October (we hope) the Melbourne retail nursery sector will fire up again. There will be huge pent up demand for plants by the public and many nurseries will need to fill up their benches. We are not sure if borders will be open by Christmas and even if they are the surveys are saying people will be travelling less than normal and for shorter times. Melbourne landscapers are partly back at work and the majority will return in November also increasing demand. Not sure where all the plants are going to come from. As an industry we must invest in getting stock on the ground to capitalise on the new demand and retaining our new gardeners. Clive Larkman
