Lavandula angustifolia 'Munstead'

Clive's Comments

June is here and for us in the south this means some cold weather and lots of rain. It's all relative as those living in northern Europe would say our winter is warmer than their summer. Having spent a year in southern California where it never rains, these cold frosty days and stormy nights are a pleasure. Also, unlike the colder northern climates our gardeners never really stop gardening. Indeed many are actively looking for things to plant. They like the challenge of growing plants that are out of their normal climate. You only need to meet a person who has managed to grow and fruit a banana plant in Melbourne to see the satisfaction this brings.

Clive's comments continued... Then there is the continually changing array of colours, form and scents as different plants come into flower, change foliage type or change colour before leaf drop. So yes, the constantly warm tropics do have some appeal when we are outside working in the cold but I would never trade it for the kaleidoscope of colours and scents that the four seasons bring. We all read and heard about the changes to Ford over the next four years, and our thoughts go out to those whose small businesses are in the supply chain. The media and the politicians are asking why, anyone who runs a small business can tell them. It is too damn expensive in this country. With penalty rates that mean a person doing the most basic of unskilled jobs is on a pro rata, annual salary of $70,000 plus super, plus work care. With power and water going up several times quicker than inflation and all other charges set by governments also rising at similar rates it is no wonder Ford is going off shore. I suspect many of us would too, if we could. This country must come into the real world and stop this continual upward spiral of wages, penalty rates and on costs. I doubt there would be many small businesses whose real profits have gone up at the same rate. The hospitality industry is petitioning for a review of penalty rates. We should be doing the same. At least they can close their doors on public holidays. Unfortunately our plants don't see any difference between Tuesday and Sunday. Perhaps if they grew twice as fast on a public holiday it wouldn't be so bad. We must tell our industry leaders and our politicians that we are also hurting from our current wage structure. June is here, shortest day is a couple of weeks away and then we are on our way to spring. Like all nursery operators, every year, we are expecting a bumper spring.

Dymondia margaretae

Dymondia margaretae is a landscapers dream! It's super tough and great for those customers who require an extra sturdy plant. But how strong is it you may ask?... Strong enough to handle Boof Larkman.

- Ground cover
- Part-full sun
- Second level coastal
- Light frost tolerant
- Sep - Nov

Geranium 'Tanya Rendall'

Tanya Rendall is an attractive cultivar, introduced into Australia by Larkman Nurseries. It is ultra hardy with purple new growth aging to green leaves and a profusion of deep pink flowers with an irregular white center blotch.

The flowers are an eye catching colour and occur from spring to the first frost. It is easy to grow and handles part shade to full sun. It is a small plant reaching only 30 to 35 cm in height.
