Clive's Comments

Spring in Melbourne is all over the place this year as we go from cold and wet to cold and windy to warm and wet with a few very warm days thrown in. We hold our Yarra Valley Plant Fair and Garden Expo on the last weekend in October. This is a much more 'low key' event than our Herb and Chilli Festival and takes a lot less organisation. However, it is still a big job and we are all working hard to make it a great event with lots of attendees.

I have been writing these comments for over twenty five years and have covered all sorts of topics from politics to sport, from births to marriages and everything that makes up the crazy world in which we live and work. I remember writing about Simon and Gemma getting married, about Martin's time in China and his marriage to Chie. I remember discussing local, state and federal politics and the issues that effect our world. The vast majority of my comments have been either positive or analytical but this month it is very hard to compose the words.

On Friday 18th of October my mother (Stephanie Larkman) passed away at the age of 83. She had been in a beautiful home in Trafalgar since early 2016. The place was great and Steph lived a happy and full three years there. Last week her dementia worsened and she peacefully left us after just a few days. It is always hard to say goodbye to a friend or family member but it seems much harder when it is your mother.

Stephanie had one of those crazy lives that really belong in the last century. She was born in Nairobi to a despotic father from the Seychelles. He was a white hunter when it was a more raw world. On one hunt a client left a leopard shot but not...

...dead so he chased the injured animal and ended up having to kill it with his hands like the old fashioned Tarzan movies. He was badly injured and gave up hunting to become an animal catcher for zoos. Steph grew up in the bush with wild animals as pets. She went to a Catholic girls school and was destined to become a nun. A life from a B-grade movie with all the fun of a normal child's imagination.

Steph met my father (Barry) at the bank where she worked and they were married soon after. They were sent to Sri Lanka (where I was born) and then posted to Bangladesh. Instead of going there they came to Australia which must have been a shock to her system. She had spent most of her life in the tropics and found Melbourne just too cold plus she was pregnant with my sister and carrying me around at the age of two. My father was a classic English male who didn't do cooking, cleaning or any housework. Steph had had servants all her life and was here on her own with no family support. She was learning how to cook, raise a child and manage a house all in a new and strange land. I just wonder how she coped.

My sister (Dawn) was born with severe mental retardation which was okay for the first few years. Soon after that my brother (Kevin) was born and then Dawn's behaviour became a real issue. Dawn was a real handful and in 1969 she went into a home and became a ward of the state. Stephanie kept in touch with Dawn and from then until Dawn's death in 2004 mum would visit her almost every week. Sundays she would usually pick up Dawn and bring her home for the day. Mum was devoted to Dawn and also spent hours and days working with Kew Cottages raising funds and helping out with the residents.

Steph taught herself how to cook and produced amazing food. Many a friend, family member and business associate has sat down to one of her special curry meals. During the seventies she and Barry ran two chemical supply companies and then in the early eighties Barry worked as a magazine editor – Australian Horticulture and Greenworld. Steph was often by his side at industry functions and dinners then in 1984 they started their own nursery. She worked in the office and hands on grading plants right up until going into the home.

This is a short essay on the life of a special person who saw many interesting parts of the world. She was a kind and generous lady with a big heart and a love of animals, birds and the garden. She will be sadly missed by all who knew her. When touched by family death we always think about our lives and hope that we are doing it well and making the world a better place. So go well, live in peace and remember life is not forever.
