August 2022

Clive's Comments

August is here and wattles are starting to bloom, Daffodils and Jonquils are in full growth and even starting to flower, business is growing again and life feels better. Federal election is a distant memory and we are getting used to seeing Albanese on the media. Ukraine is still a mess and although the whole world (almost) is angry about Putin's actions there is little more they can do. Russia is one of the few countries that can cut itself off from the world economy and still survive. I am sure the real Russians are hurting but I doubt they know why.

Covid 19 is still infecting people, high numbers in hospital and many dying each day. I am not sure about other states but the Victorian medical system is collapsing. The government is blaming Covid but all the reports say that Covid has brought the problem to a head but really it was there long before 2020. We have an election coming up and the Victorian population has had enough of lockdowns, restrictions, mandates and masks so the government is modifying its behaviour accordingly. We have a daily discussion about all these issues and opinions...

...are varied and strongly held. The interesting observation is that although we technically are still under Pandemic regulations and have a multitude of Covid rules still in place - most are ignored as we try to live our lives they way we used to. What is happening is a mess and in many cases completely lacking in logic. Personally I think most of the Covid behaviour will fall away and we will be much more focused on what is going to be some unusual years for the economy. With national unemployment at 3.5% most businesses are struggling to find staff. This is resulting in rising wages that are higher than what the Fair Work Commission is targeting. This will of course quickly feed into rising prices which will increase CPI that will in turn put pressure back on wages. Last time we had this at these levels was the nineteen eighties. We ended up with the recession we had to have and crazy high interest rates. The last time unemployment was this low was the seventies which caused the overheated economy of the eighties. At the same time we have the rapid expansion of the economy after the shut downs imposed due to the Pandemic. Although we focus on the effects in Australia the same is happening around the world. In major exporting nations this has rippled across the world in stock shortages and rising prices. Add in the war in Ukraine, a belligerent Russia and aggressive China and the world is unknown waters. All countries are showing high inflation and staff shortages! In the past when we have had these conditions consumption was much lower with many single income families. People focused on saving for a house or retirement but now we have several generations of "I want it and I want it now". All we need to do is look at the mix of retailers in shopping strips and small centres where the proportion of food and coffee outlets is way higher than any time in the past. High demand for goods and a passion for coffee and eating out. This is why we have such high employment and such a robust economy. We also have high spending state and federal governments that are pushing up business activity to an almost unsustainable level. Government priorities are on building the economy and creating jobs even if it is detrimental to the wider society. We just need to look at pay packages on government work sites in Victoria. Wages earned on government sites are well above private industry and this is pushing wages and thus construction costs up in much the same way as the boom in mining did twenty years ago. When added to an hospitality boom we have huge pressures on labour and inputs. All we can hope is that this shortage will balance out very quickly. The real question we all have is what will happen in the plant industry? In the past much of the government spending was on road and buildings (ie open ground that used lots of plants) whereas now (especially in Victoria) it is mostly underground. However we are still desperately short in housing and the add on shopping centres, schools etc. These all use plants! The commercial side of the industry will be strong over the next five years which will pull through. We have known for many years that our industry is less influenced by the economy than by the weather. In recession people cut back in travel and stay home and garden. Tight economy also means less movement in housing and more in renovations. Booming economy means lots of new buildings and the resultant use of plants and the poorer sections of the community have money to spend on their gardens. People move home and tidy up the gardens when they sell and often redo the gardens in the new place. All placing demand on nursery production. So what does 2022 and 2023 hold for us? One thing for sure; if you don't have the plants on the ground you can't sell them. I suspect we will have a strong demand from mid-spring to late autumn (provided we don't have a nasty summer - which is on the cards) and there will be demand for good old fashioned plant varieties.
